SAVANNAH, GEORGIA.

Senator Hill Welcomed to That City.

BANQUET OF HIBERNIANS.

The Irish Population of Savannah Honor the Visitor from New York—The Return Trip to Washington Begun.

SAVANNAH, March 18.—Senator Hill and his party arrived in this city at 4:45 o'clock yesterday evening. All the way from Macon to Savannah, wherever Senator Hill's train made a brief stop some of the people boarded it to shake the senator's hand. At half past 1 o'clock the party took dinner at Wadley. The proprietor of the railroad hotel presented a miniature bottle of whisky to the senator with the remark that he had been reading some of his speeches and he wanted him to "put a little more Democracy into them." The senator laughingly accepted the souvenir and also a beautiful bouquet of flowers which one of Wadley's fair daughters had sent to him.

By the time the party had finished dinner the news of the senator's arrival had spread and all the population of the little town turned out to do honor to its guests. A veteran Democrat made a touching appeal for a "two-minutes' talk," and the senator would have gratified him, but just as he began to speak the train pulled out and the senator barely had opportunity to say "vote the Democratic ticket and you'll be happy," as his car moved away from the station.

At Millen, where the party arrived at 2:35, there was a crowd of about 150 men and women on the platform. Senator Hill spoke briefly from the car platform. He said that he was delighted to visit this part of the country and this section of the great commonwealth of Georgia. He hoped his hearers were true and loyal Democrats, and that they voted the Democratic ticket and upheld the constitution, then they could transmit to their children the priceless heritage of liberty. Three cheers were given for the senator as he retired. Colonel Pat Walsh, proprietor of the Augusta Chronicle, joined the party at Millen.

A tragic incident occurred at Olivers, forty-six miles from Savannah. An old colored woman in trying to cross in front of the train was struck by the engine and killed. She had been warned back by the station agent, but she would not heed the warning. The train was stopped half a mile beyond the station and backed down to the scene of the accident. The conductor jotted down the facts for his official report, and then the train went on.

The rest of the trip was without incident. The train reached Savannah at 4:45 o'clock. As it entered the confines of the city the engineer started his whistle and kept it going. The signal started the other whistles in the railroad yards, and they shrieked a string and deafening welcome to the party as the train drew into the station. Before it stopped it was surrounded by a crowd, which welcomed the senator as he stepped from the platform, with cheers and clapping of hands. M. A. O'Byrne and J. H. Bryan, of the Hibernian society, met the senator at the station and escorted him through the cheering crowd to a carriage which was in waiting for him and in which he was taken to the DeSoto.

The Hill club, of Savannah, tendered the senator a repast at 5:30 o'clock. They came up the street past the hotel in a column of fours, preceded by a negro band playing "Dixie." When they had assembled about the hotel veranda P. J. O'Connor, president of the club, escorted the senator to the front of the veranda, and when the cheering had subsided made a brief speech of introduction. The band played "Hail to the Chief," after which the senator made a brief address.

Senator Hill then retired to his room to prepare for the eightieth annual banquet of the Hibernian society, at which the senator was the chief guest, which was held in the opera house in the evening. There were 150 guests at the banquet. The house was elaborately decorated with American, Irish and Scotch banners. The tables were arranged on the stage. The guests sat down at 7:30 o'clock. Senator Hill sat at the right of the president of the club, Mr. O'Connor.

At 9 o'clock, just before the conclusion of the banquet proper, the doors of the opera house were opened and the friends of the members of the club holding tickets were admitted to the seats in the body of the house to hear the speeches.

The regular toasts were: "St. Patrick's Day," response by Pat Calhoun; "Savannah," Walter B. Charlton; "Our Federal Union," Senator Hill; "Our Invited Guests," Gazaway Hartridge; "The Press," J. T. Bonfilliet; "The Bench and Bar," Judge A. P. Adams; "Ireland," Professor A. C. White; "Woman," John Teple Graves.

Senator Hill has decided to go to Augusta today. He has about decided not to make a speech at Norfolk, as he has dispatches saying that the weather is bad. He may stop there for an hour to shake hands with his friends before taking the boat for Washington.

The senator received an invitation yesterday from the Hill club from Nashville, which he was obliged to decline.

The Vessel Unloaded.

LONDON, March 18.—The coal steamer Nellie Wise arrived in the Thames from Newport. The unionist coal porters refused to handle her cargo on account of the coal strike. Yesterday she was discharged by men employed by the Shippers' federation. It was thought that disturbances would occur, but the coal was all discharged without trouble of any kind.

FRIGHTENED TO DEATH.

A River Steamer Takes Fire and One of the Passengers Dies of Excitement.

CINCINNATI, March 18.—The large side-wheel steamer Guiding Star, the largest vessel on the Ohio river, returned here yesterday afternoon from her New Orleans Mardi Gras trip, bringing a large number of passengers. The trip was an eventful one, which brought sadness and sorrow to one family in this city and their many friends. When the boat was opposite Lawrenceburg, Ind., the vessel caught fire. She ran over to the Kentucky shore. The fire was found to be in the cotton. It was soon extinguished. There was, however, wild excitement.

Mrs. Belle Shodding, aged sixty-five, who lived at 447 1-2 West Seventh street, this city, widow of Mr. George Shodding, at one time a well known employe in the fire department of Cincinnati and later on in the government service, and the sister-in-law of Mr. James Shodding, formerly one of the owners of The Enquirer, was one of the passengers returning from the New Orleans Mardi Gras festivities. During the excitement she was attacked with heart trouble. Notwithstanding the assistance of friends and others she died ere the boat reached the wharf. Captain Hegler summoned Dr. Gatch, and everything was done to restore the lady, but to no avail.

MAX STRAKOSCH DEAD.

The Famous Impresario Dies of Paralysis.

NEW YORK, March 18.—Max Strakosch, the famous impresario, died yesterday of paralysis.

Max Strakosch was born in Brunn, Moravia, Sept. 2, 1835. When about twenty years old he came to the United States. He became an agent for Impresario Uhlmann, and afterwards started out for himself. His first venture was the management of an Italian opera company, which included Carlotta Patti, a sister of Adelina, and Amelia Patti, another sister, whom his brother, Maurice Strakosch, married. Subsequently he became the sole manager of the Academy of Music, and it was under his management that the operas of "Carmen," "Aida" and "Faust" were produced for the first time in this country. At one time and another under his management, and that of his brother Maurice, appeared the leading artists of the world.

SMALL RIOT.

Drunken Woodsmen Engage in a Drunken Quarrel.

BRADFORD, Pa., March 18.—Last night a number of Kushequa woodsmen engaged in a drunken row on the Erie train while returning home from Bradford. When the train reached Mount Jewett, they renewed their quarreling and set upon John Aiken, an old man, and beat him brutally.

Landlord Campbell, of the Thompson House, came to Aiken's rescue. George Hudson, whom the men had assaulted on the train, went to Aiken and Campbell's aid. The row became general and developed into a small riot. Several people received broken heads. The woodsmen were finally fought to a standstill, and five of them captured and taken to the county jail at Smithport, on a charge of riot. George Hudson's injuries are considered serious.

Two Captured but One Escaped.

WILMINGTON, Del., March 18.—Two of the men who escaped from the train after a fight with officers on Tuesday morning were captured at Fredericktown, Cecil county, Md., yesterday. They were bound with ropes and put in a wagon and taken to Elkton by two officers. They reached there at midnight, and just as they stopped at the jail one of the prisoners sprang from the wagon and escaped into the darkness. He had untied the ropes around his legs. The other man is locked up. He is pretty well used up after his four days' exposure to the weather.

Market House Damaged by Fire.

PHILADELPHIA, March 18.—Fire yesterday badly damaged the Philadelphia market house at Thirtieth and Market streets, the most completely equipped structure of its kind in the city. Imperfect insulation on an electric light wire caused the blaze, which originated in the two story portion of the building used for refrigerating and office purposes and by David Hoffer, wholesale meat dealer. Most of the stock was saved, but the costly refrigerators and interior of the building were completely gutted. The loss is estimated at $75,000 or over; covered by insurance.

Iowa Republican Convention.

DES MOINES, March 18.—The Republican state convention for the purpose of electing delegates to the national presidential convention at Minneapolis met there yesterday. The delegates from two districts were instructed to vote for Harrison. In the others the delegates are uninstructed, but all others understood to favor the renomination of the president. The Seventh district caucus refused to pass a resolution of instruction, as there was a strong element favoring Allison.

Farmer Shot by His Wife.

GREENUP, Ky., March 18.—Charles Crump, a farmer of Argylite, was fatally shot by his wife last night. He had just returned home from the woods on his farm where, in company with his brother, he had been engaged nearly all day in sawing lumber. His wife accused him of having spent his time with a woman, and without warning drew a pistol and shot him. The jealous wife was lodged in jail. There are threats of lynching.

Judge Woods Confirmed.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—The nomination of Judge Woods of Indiana, as United States circuit judge of the court of appeals, was confirmed by the senate yesterday, the vote being 25 for confirmation to 24 against.

WILLIAMS' CRIMES.

They Are Being Unearthed by the Liverpool Police.

SEARCHING FOR MORE VICTIMS.

The Body of a Servant Girl Believed to Be Buried Under the Floor of the Villa—The History of the Murderer as Known to the Authorities—Other Foreign News.

LIVERPOOL, March 18.—The excitement caused by the discovery of the four bodies buried under the floor of a house at Rain Hill, a part of the town of Liverpool, shows no signs of abatement whatever, and further developments in the case are eagerly awaited.

The identity of the murdered woman and of the two children have at length been established. The police have discovered that her former name was Marie James, and that she was married in February, 1881, at St. Paul's church, Trammere, Birkenhead, to one Deeming, which there seems to be no doubt is the real name of the murderer. Mrs. Deeming lived in Canning street, Birkenhead, and her relatives had not heard of her for a year. The names of the murdered children have been found in a copybook in the stable.

Deeming, alias Williams, appears to have led a meteoric life. He sojourned in 1890 at the town of Beverly, a few miles from Hull, Yorkshire. He was there known as Harry Lawson, an Australian squatter, and courted the daughter of the landlady of the house in which he lived. The landlady had two daughters, and in May, 1890, Williams married one of them. They went to Hull and there spent the honeymoon. Lawson deserted his wife in Hull, taking with him her jewelry, which had been bought on credit. Lawson fled to Montevideo, in South America.

The jeweler in Hull from whom the jewelry had been obtained made a criminal complaint against Lawson, accusing him of obtaining valuables under false pretenses. Lawson was brought back from Montevideo on a warrant of extradition, and tried at Hull for the crime. He was convicted and sentenced to nine months at hard labor, and was released in July, 1891. The authorities also intended to prosecute him on the charge of bigamy, as they were aware of his previous marriage. This, it was decided, could not be done, as it was not the charge on which he was extradited from Montevideo. It was soon after his release that he made himself known to the people of Rain Hill.

It appears that after his release from prison, and while living at Rain Hill, Williams wrote occasionally to the wife he had married at Beverly, asking her to join him. This she refused to do, and thereby probably escaped being among the victims under the fireplace.

The news from Australia, giving the account of the murder at Melbourne, stated that scraps of letters had been found in the pockets of the victim, in which Rain Hill was mentioned, and this suggested to the police the investigation, which has had such startling results at Dinham villa. The search of the premises continues, but thus far no more bodies have been unearthed.

A neighbor living near the Dinham villa states that before the arrival of the woman and two children who afterwards disappeared, Williams told a woman, who did some work about the place, that he expected a nurse with two children to arrive there soon. The nurse is believed to be buried some where under the cement. It is believed that all the murders were committed on the night of the 1st of August. The plasters were called to Dinham villa by Williams on the 3d of August, and they noticed then that of the four barrels of cement, one was empty. The flagstones were already over the bodies, and the cement used at the fireplace was then just about as dry as two days would have made it.

It appears that after the murders Miss Mather, as the bride of Williams, visited the villa. Her husband was in an unusually jovial mood on the occasion, and danced and sang joyously over the very flagstones beneath which his victims reposed. It appears that the boxes suspected to contain evidence of the crimes were forwarded to Plymouth on Aug. 14 last, and about the same time the presents made to Miss Mather on the occasion of the marriage mysteriously disappeared.

The police are still considering whether Williams may not have been "Jack the Ripper," owing to the similarity of the throat cutting done the victims of Dinham villa to the work of the "Ripper" in London.

Miners to Go to Work.

LONDON, March 18.—After a long discussion of the question whether the stoppage of work should continue for a week or a fortnight, the delegates to the conference of the miners' federation unanimously adopted a resolution declaring that in view of the fact that the object for which the pits had been stopped had been achieved, the conference advises the miners to resume work on Monday.

A Sculptor's Crime.

PARIS, March 18.—Ajaques Lecreux, the sculptor, also known as Hector Franco, murdered his solicitor after a struggle, in which the victim received thirteen wounds made with a dagger.

A Grand Duke's Funeral.

DARMSTADT, March 18.—The funeral of the late Grand Duke of Hesse took place yesterday. An immense throng of people attended the ceremonies.

Murderer Schneider Strangled.

VIENNA, March 18.—Frank Schneider, the murderer of servant girls, was executed here Thursday. He was strangled after the Austrian method.

IF WE ONLY KNEW.

Another Appeal in Behalf of the Starving Russians.

NEW YORK, March 18.—A special cablegram to this city from St. Petersburg contains the following appeal from American citizens who were sent to Russia to aid in alleviating the distress of the famine-stricken people of that country:

If the American people knew the extent of the suffering in the famine districts of Russia they would everywhere come to the rescue. Twenty millions of people are affected and in danger of death from starvation. Typhus fever is raging in many provinces, and horses and cattle are perishing of hunger. Does this not appeal to the hearts of those able to help? Russia is deeply grateful to the American people for what they have done. The distribution of supplies is under the direction of the American minister and an excellent committee. Nothing will be wasted. Every particle of food will be properly distributed. Help us.

RUDOLPH BLANKENBURG,
A. J. DREXEL, JR.,

TOOK HIS LAST DRINK.

Deliberate Suicide of a Traveling Salesman in a Bar Room.

AKRON, O., March 18.—At a late hour Wednesday night Clifton Wright, a well known and popular traveling salesman of this city, walked into a saloon, asked for a glass of seltzer with a spoon, and while stirring into the water a quantity of some crystalline substance he had in a paper, calmly said: "Good-by, boys, I'm going to die." He drank the contents of the glass and then remarked that it was chloral hydrate, and "I've taken enough to kill four men. I'll be dead in five minutes."

He then coolly proposed to shake dice with the proprietor for his last drink. Two or three minutes later he reeled and plunged headlong to the floor. An ambulance conveyed him to his home, where he died in two hours. His wife, who was a Miss Berth, lived in Bowling Green, Ky., left him suddenly a week ago and returned home. Their married life was not happy, and Wright on Wednesday was informed by his wife's lawyer that he would have to defend a divorce suit.

UNJUST JEALOUSY.

It Leads a Pittsburg Man to Murder His Wife.

PITTSBURG, March 18.—At 7:30 o'clock yesterday evening Michael Cloonan returned to his home, 52 Congress street, from his day's work, and seizing a chair beat his wife over the head until she lay lifeless at his feet. Cloonan tried to escape, but was arrested about an hour after the murder and placed in jail.

When arrested Cloonan declared that he was glad he had killed her, that she deserved death and that he was willing to hang for doing it. Cloonan is 54 years of age, the father of four grown children. One of Cloonan's sons declares his intention to kill his father for murdering his mother. Cloonan is said to have been unjustly jealous of his wife.

Natural Gas Not Failing.

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., March 18.—The article recently published in a number of papers in reference to the failure of gas wells here, giving Superintendent Todd, of the Noblesville Gas company, as authority, is absolutely false. Mr. Todd positively denied making such a statement to any one, and says there is no foundation for it. The gas wells here are holding up splendidly, and there is an abundance of gas for every purpose. The Indianapolis gas companies are now getting their supply of gas from ten miles northeast of this city, and also from Madison county, which has caused an improvement in the pressure of the wells in this vicinity.

Russell Harrison in Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 18.—Russell Harrison, son of President Harrison, is in town. He came in on the 1 o'clock Pennsylvania train yesterday afternoon, direct from Washington, and is on his way to the west, where he is to look after, it is given out, business matters. He was in consultation with Governor Porter, at the Dennison House, in the afternoon. The conference gave rise to the supposition that he had brought some message from Washington touching Italian affairs. Governor Porter, however, says that he has received no information from Washington on any official subject.

Crops in the Ohio.

COLUMBUS, O., March 18.—The state board of agriculture has not attempted to prepare a crop bulletin since the first of the year. The information received shows that at the beginning of March Ohio wheat was in a deplorable condition, due to unfavorable conditions of weather from seeding time to date. At that time it was difficult to see how Ohio wheat could yield half an average crop. The recent freezing weather with no snow to protect the wheat must have put it in even a worse condition, although no official information is at hand.

Wants to Fight Fitzsimmons.

NEW YORK, March 18.—Warren Lewis, one of the men who was financially interested in the backing of Peter Maher against Bob Fitzsimmons, yesterday posted $1,000 from the New York World, and, on behalf of Jim Hall, of Australia, challenged Fitzsimmons to a finish fight before the club that would give the largest purse.

Elliott Jury Still Out.

COLUMBUS, O., March 18.—The jury in the murder case of Patsy Elliott is still out, and his friends predict a disagreement. It is rumored that three of the jurymen are hanging out for acquittal, though that is probably only a guess.
